

Internships

You gain a lot of theoretical knowledge during your studies. But for success you need practical experience. We offer internships as a practical-knowledge learning opportunity with experienced and championing Rwandan tech companies.

One of AIPI's goals is to create employment opportunities in the field of ICT and innovation, therefore one of the lessons learned is that most graduates lack practical experience. It's in this regard, that through our project's subsidize, we are offering different internships opportunities. The aim of these internships is to enable graduates and young professionals gain practical experience and to lessen the burden to local companies who want to offer job opportunities to young graduates but are struggling to do so in early stages.

The main goal of this activity is for companies to be able to help the interns in gaining practical experience, help them to kickstart their career by equipping them with the required skills and to be able to employ them on a permanent basis after taking part in the internship program.
